Stuart Strong

Welcome to the summer edition of Life by Hometown Australia. In the last edition for 2025, we share the exciting news of Hometown Australia's recent acquisition in Queensland, explore the best in beachside living, and stay up to date on how residents have been leading an active and engaging lifestyle.

We are pleased to announce the recent acquisition of a Living Gem community on the Gold Coast in Queensland. Launching as the Suncrest over 50s* community, it is Hometown's second community in the northern Gold Coast region and expands the Queensland portfolio to 22 communities. Suncrest is a well-established community in the prestigious pocket of Coombabah, supporting a socially and physically active lifestyle for residents. The acquisition supports Hometown Australia's commitment in delivering affordable and quality homes in lifestyle rich locations in Queensland.

Hometown Australia had a stellar night at the annual NSW Caravan, Camping & Industry Association (CCIA) Awards of Excellence evening being nominated across three award categories. We are thrilled to share the winners and finalists across all three categories in this edition of the magazine. Thank you to the CCIA for a great evening, which provides the opportunity to shine a spotlight on the standout achievements by professionals within the industry.

It has been a busy lead up to the end of the year with community competitions and events. In this edition we share how residents have been building a lifestyle rich in friendship and camaraderie.

Lastly, we would like to take this opportunity to wish residents and their families a Merry Christmas and a happy and safe New Year. We look forward to sharing in a fantastic 2026!

Kind regards,

Kevin Tucker Stuart Strong

Just Like a Resort - Discovering Oasis

For just half the price of homes in the surrounding suburb, retirees Margy and Marty Wooster are enjoying all the pleasures of beachside living at the Oasis Redhead community in New South Wales.

"We feel like we are in a resort. We get the sea breezes, sounds of the birds and the best sunrises over the ocean. It takes us only three minutes to drive to the beach, where we can walk our dog on the sand", said Marty.

The Woosters were among the first to move into Oasis Redhead, after relocating from Newcastle around 12 months ago. The community is located around 400m from Redhead Beach, with a nature reserve, sand dunes and a lagoon separating the beach and community. The beach is so close that residents can go to sleep at night enjoying the restful sounds of waves and cooling sea breezes.

The Woosters shared that a strong community has formed, with residents organising activities including book clubs, bike riding, sewing and table tennis events at a nearby club. Marty compares this friendly and social environment to his time living in a general community home in the Hunter region, where he barely spoke to his neighbours.

Construction of the new state-of-the-art clubhouse is also set to commence soon. The clubhouse will include many high-end amenities, including a gym, sauna, outdoor pool and spa, and activities, craft and games rooms. It will also include an activity lawn, picnic area, library and cinema, and an alfresco deck with views across the dunes.

Like many other Oasis Redhead residents, the Woosters are thoroughly enjoying their new architecturally designed home. There are nine home designs, with a range of sizes, colours and architectural features, including two display homes available to inspect on-site. New homes are currently available from $865,000, which is around half the $1.6m median price for homes in the surrounding suburb of Redhead in July 2025.

"The moment we moved in, it was a lovely relief, as we were very happy with the quality of the home. The only issue is that we don't spend enough time at home, we are always out and about", said Margy.

A sunny sanctuary for life after 50, Coombabah in Queensland is known for its beautiful weather, stunning natural surrounds, and relaxed living.

Hometown Australia recently required the Living Gems Gold Coast community and launched as the Suncrest over 50s community. "We are thrilled to welcome current residents at Suncrest to the Hometown Australia family," said Jamie Brown, Asset Manager, Queensland region.

There is always something to do at Suncrest with this friendly neighbourhood-style community buzzing with social events. Offering a range of amenities to support an independent and socially active lifestyle, residents can enjoy swimming laps in the indoor pool, meeting friends on the green for a social game of bowls, tinkering in the workshop, or joining one of the many activities in the clubhouse.

"With a strong sense of community embedded at Suncrest, we look forward to introducing residents to the Competitions and Events calendar in 2026. They might be bowling their way to the Grand Final of the State of Origin Bowling Competition next year!" concluded Mr. Brown.

Timeless Design for Ageless Living at Parkside

Josephine Maruca-Parker

With its chic design, welcoming spaces, warm touches and gorgeous amenities, once built it will be hard not to mistake the clubhouse at the Parkside community in Yamba, NSW, as a resort you would see in a magazine! We speak with Josephine Maruca-Parker, Creative Director and Founder of JMP Interior Design to discuss the unique design aspects and provide a sneak peek into the new clubhouse at Parkside.

Josephine, welcome it is great to speak with you! From a design perspective, what is the vision for the clubhouse?

The vision for the clubhouse is to create a harmonious space that balances aesthetic, functionality and sustainability, whilst creating a place that's evokes emotion. With open, coastal-inspired spaces, the Parkside clubhouse is designed to feel calm, welcoming, and effortlessly like home.

How would you describe the look and feel of the clubhouse?

The conceptual design for the clubhouse has been derived from the beautiful surrounds of Yamba. We have created a light and bright palette focussed on mixing textures and patterns to reflect the topography and coastal landscape. We wanted the clubhouse to feel sophisticated yet inviting, a space residents could be proud of to invite family and friends, while also feeling comfortable in using the wonderful amenities the clubhouse has to offer.

What are some of the amenities in the clubhouse?

The clubhouse supports a socially and physically active lifestyle with a swimming pool, gym, bowling green, BBQ area, break out rooms in the clubhouse perfect for activities, reading, and relaxing. With a gorgeous poolside terrace, sundowner drinks with your neighbours will be a must.

What are some interesting design elements?

Something unique about the design is that the material and finishes develop and vary as you move from space to space. This reflects the different areas of the surrounding environment. For example, the lounge space has a mix of patterned carpet and rug inserts, chosen in the tones of deep and light blue to represent water, whilst other areas feature a warmer colour palette of deep and bright yellows, to reflect the sand and sunlight.

About Parkside

Gardening Champions Bloom at Spring Gardening Competition 2025

Spring has sprung across the Hometown Australia communities with residents donning their gardening gloves and entering their gorgeous rose bushes, charming everlastings and annuals, and carefully curated gardens areas.

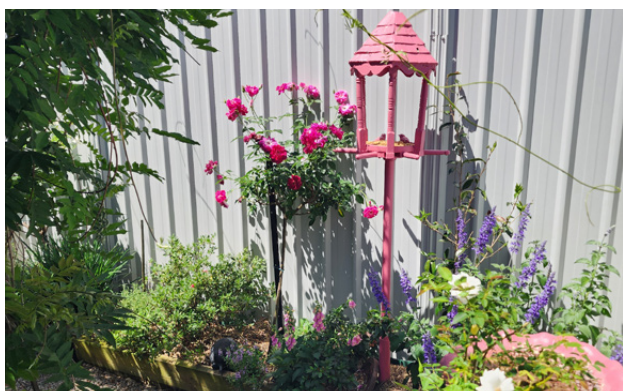

It was a tough decision for the judges with an overwhelming response to this year's competition. The competition was so tight that this year Hometown Australia awarded a runner up in the National Best Resident Garden category. Please join us in congratulating this years Spring Gardening Competition winners:

Winner: National Best Resident Garden

Grace from Jacaranda Grove, New South Wales

Grace wowed the judges with her beautiful entry of her back garden, which she shared is inspired by a 'cottage garden.' Blossoming with beautiful character with a whimsical tapestry of colour and fragrance, rich with rambling flowers and intriguing pathways. It is even complete with a pink bird feeder. Congratulations Grace!

Best Resident Garden Runner-Up,

Runner Up: National Best Resident Garden

Sheryl from Cobb Haven, New South Wales

"Sheryl moved into the community last year and spends as much time as she can in her garden, lovingly returning it to its full glory. She considers herself to be the "caretaker" of the previous owner's hard work, however she too works hard and is now reaping the rewards. The azaleas are just stunning," shared Jodie, Community Administrator. Well done, Sheryl!

Best Community Garden winner is Kingfisher Gardens, Queensland

National Best Community Garden Winner Kingfisher Gardens, Queensland

"In the heart of the Garden City, our residents came together to transform a tired garden bed in the community into something truly special. This was a big job removing an old dead tree and overgrown shrubs, designing a new layout, and working side by side to bring it to life. At the centre stands a beautiful olive tree in a feature pot, chosen by the committee to symbolise peace, resilience, and community. Surrounded by white standard roses and lavender, this garden is a proud reflection of who we are — connected, caring, and committed. Built by many hands, rooted in community," shared Rosie Gillece, Community Manager.

Thank you to all residents who were involved in this year's competition and congratulations to all of the in-community Best Resident Garden competition winners. Hometown Australia looks forward to hosting the Spring Gardening Competition in 2026!

R U OK? Day at Hometown Australia

A sea of yellow was seen across Hometown Australia's communities on Thursday, 11 September 2025 in support of the annual R U OK? Day initiative.

R U OK? Day is an important initiative that residents across the communities have taken part in for the past four years, where they create a safe space within the community to ask the important question, R U OK? Let's take a look at how residents supported R U OK? Day within the communities this year –

R U OK? Day with a Twist at Nepean Shores!

This year, residents at the Nepean Shores community in NSW did something with a twist! Instead of the traditional yellow theme, the community hosted a Gatsby themed evening to support the R U OK? Day initiative. "The evening was a beautiful mix of connection, catching up, and checking in with each other. There was live entertainment, lots of belly laughter and delicious food complete with 20s inspired desserts. Residents are saying the event was the best yet!" said Tina Andreanis, Community Manager at Nepean Shores.

A Sausage Sizzle with a Smile at Red Gum

Residents at the Red Gum community in Queensland did not disappoint, dressing up for the annual R U OK? Day BBQ event in fun yellow costumes. Management hosted a sausage sizzle for residents to enjoy and share in a moment of connection to ask the important question, R U OK? "We had a great turn out this year with residents popping by for a sausage sizzle and staying for good conversation and some laughs!" said Renee Bettles, Community Manager at Red Gum.

Checking-in (Any Day!) at Rosetta

For this year's R U OK? Day event, Management at the Rosetta community in South Australia hosted a sausage sizzle followed by a few sweet treats for residents. "It was lovely to see so many of our wonderful residents attend, dressed in theme with a hint of yellow and enjoy the chitter chatter amongst themselves," said Lisa Fyfe, Community Manager. This year the team's main message was to check in on your neighbours – any day – with one resident demonstrating how to ask R U OK? in Auslan.
